I came up with the following eval_function:

1. If the opponent/computer plays a random move:
      i. The player gets a constant value 4 which it uses to determine the next move.

* Wasn't able to come up with a better evaluation function because of other assignments and time constraints. Hope you understand!